

IOWA FARMERS MOVING.

The Iowa farmers are making arrangements to put a ticket in the fields this year. An election for Governor and other State officers will be held next November, and the Farmers' Independent party will probably be the first to nominate a ticket. It purposes holding a State Convention in June and to ignore all existing parties. The call for a convention says the time has arrived when the friends of industrial reform should associate themselves for independent political action without regard to former political affiliations.

The Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, Farmers' Mutual Benefit Association, State Grange, Knights of Labor, and all industrial organizations are invited to send representatives to the Convention, not as representing organizations but as individuals.

It seems now to be generally accepted by Democrats that the South will get the Speakership, because it cannot hope to be represented upon the national ticket next year, and the fight seems to be between Mills of Texas, Crisp of Georgia, and McMillan of Tennessee, with the chances of election at present about as in the order named; but if Crisp continues to gain as he has done lately he will go into the caucus in the lead. He has, however, a newly developed and powerful opposition, in the liquor interests, to overcome, and it is very doubtful whether he can succeed in doing it.

The story that Justice Field is about to retire from the Bench may be taken with some grains of allowance. Nothing pays better than the profession of judge in California and Field seems to have done better than anybody.

COAST NEWS.

The death of Louis Dunbar, a negro woodchopper near Cloverdale, is attributed to Indians, and an investigation is going on.

The defendants in the Kaweah Colony case have been refused a new trial and ordered to appear for sentence June 8th at Los Angeles.

Albert Boyd, a judge in a horse race at Sealand, Wash., ran on the track before all the horses passed the stand, and was knocked down and killed.

Large quantities of hediondilla or grease wood are sent from Yuma, East for medicinal purposes. The shrub, which grows abundantly there, is said to possess valuable medicinal purposes.

A cloudburst near Liberty, N. M., Sunday night washed away a party of campers. The water came down the canyon several feet high, drowning E. J. Wilcox. The others had a narrow escape.

The Wopsy Tigers, an organized gang somewhat similar to the Whitecaps, made a raid Sunday night on a citizen's house in Gridley Cal., which does not bear the best reputation, and came near wrecking the premises.

D. C. Dare, editor and publisher of the Golden Mine at Las Placetas, Bernalillo county, N. M., is said to be the murderer of E. M. Wilson, lessee of the Monterzuma mine, whose body was found the other day with three bullets holes in it.

Edward F. Hoffman of Pasadena Cal., a bricklayer, has brought suit for $25,000 damages against Dr. J. S. Hodges and E. B. Philbrook of that place for alleged malpractice in treating him for injuries received while working on a house.

The Yuma Indians have collected a much larger amount of mesquite gum this season than for many years past. It is thought that the overflow caused the increase in the amount of gum produced which is valuable to the Yumas for many purposes, not the least of which is for dyeing the hair a dark black.

The steam launch Nagasaki, built in Japan about a year ago for Captain Steers of Vancouver, B. C., has been so injured by an incompetent engineer that it will cost $1,500 to repair her. He burned out the boilers before the vessel was forty miles out of port.
